Hip Flexor Stretch

The hips play an enormous role in posture. Hip flexor stretches should be done daily.

This is an exercise & great stretch to help relieve sore backs, as hips play a major part for when we move forward, stand and turn in different directions.

Stand in a forward lunge position (not deep or too low), one leg bent in front of you, without bending the knee too far forward (the knee must not go over the front toe) Keep the hips facing forward, the legs fairly far apart and the heels flat on the ground. Push forward gently from the hip region, leaning forwards into the hip without force.

Lift your arms up, just above shoulder level, without arching your back, or leaning back too far.

Hold for the count of 5 (ensure the arms don't drop down).

N.B. To come out of the position, bend your knees, bring your arms in close to your sides and do a spinal roll.

REMEMBER THIS IS NOT A THIGH EXERCISE, IT IS A STRETCH TO BE FELT IN THE STOMACH, FRONT OF THE LEGS, AS WELL AS THE HIP AND GROIN REGION. DON'T DO SHARP OR JERKY MOVEMENTS.

STRETCH OF THE UPPER & LOWER BACK

Supporting & relaxing tight muscles. Preventing pain in the pelvic region and back

Place your hands and fingers on the inside of your knees and push your legs apart gently.

Keep your hips facing forward.

Turn your head and shoulder gently to one side and then repeat on the other side.

Move slowly and breathe slowly, repeating the movement four times.

Make sure the hips don't rotate inwards or you won't stretch the back. It will hurt the lower back. Remember to follow through with your head at all times.
